The cinema studies major blends a film- and media-focused liberal arts education with creative work in digital filmmaking. Because cinema is inherently multidisciplinary, the major spans the College of Arts and Sciences, the School of Architecture and Allied Arts, and the School of Journalism and Communication, and includes a diverse array of courses in the history, theory, and aesthetics of cinema as well as in digital production. This collaboration is unique to Oregon: cinema studies majors take their courses across three different schools rather than from one department or program within one school, learning to understand the medium from a variety of disciplinary angles and perspectives.

The bachelor of arts in cinema studies provides its graduates with a sound foundation for entering their chosen professions or continuing their education in graduate school. It also gives them the critical and analytic skills to adapt to the changes that are likely to occur in their professions throughout their lifetimes.

Students in the major are encouraged to study overseas in programs that immerse them in different cultures and languages, including the program's own summer program in Dublin, Ireland, at the National Film School of Ireland, housed in the Dún Laoghaire Institute of Art, Design, and Technology. Students are also encouraged to work with the program's staff to seek internships in their chosen areas of potential career interest and expertise.

Undergraduate Studies

The bachelor of arts in cinema studies consists of 56 credits divided among four categories: fundamentals, production, core courses, and electives. The major includes the option of graduating with honors. A bachelor of science degree is not offered.

Courses in the major must be taken for a letter grade, and students must earn a grade of mid-C or better for credit toward the major. At least 28 credits must be taken in residence at the University of Oregon.

1. Fundamentals courses (16 credits) introduce majors to three central approaches to cinema studies: historical, social-institutional, and aesthetic. These must be completed before entry into production courses.

   - Students must complete Media and Society (J201), Media Aesthetics (ENG260), and two of the three courses in the history sequence [History of the Motion Picture (ENG265), History of the Motion Picture (ENG266), and History of the Motion Picture (ENG267)], which may be taken in any order. Completion of all fundamentals courses is required before taking any production courses.

2. Production courses (8 credits: 4 from Production A and 4 from Production B) give all majors a chance to learn the essentials of media production.

   - After completing the fundamentals requirements, students may enroll in a Production A course [Introduction to Production (ARTD256), Introduction to Narrative Cinema Production (CINE270), or Introduction to Documentary Production (J208)].

   - After successful completion of a Production A course, students are eligible to register for Production B courses (various topics in production; please see term course list [http://cinema.uoregon.edu/term-course-lists] for offerings).

3. Core courses (24 credits) strengthen students’ understanding of cinema as a dynamic, multicultural, and transnational phenomenon. Please see term course list (http://cinema.uoregon.edu/term-course-lists) for offerings.

   - Students must complete six core courses, with at least one from each subcategory: Core A (institutions); Core B (theory and criticism); and Core C (national, regional, and transnational cinema).

   - For students who declared the cinema studies major in fall 2013 or later: two courses in the core with the CINE subject code (8 credits out of the required 24) are required.

4. Electives (8 credits) allow students to broaden their exposure to cinema and media studies. These courses are not focused exclusively on cinema but instead study it in relation to other modes of inquiry, including (but not limited to) Asian studies, comparative literature, ethnic studies, folklore, philosophy, journalism, literary studies, music, Romance languages, and women’s and gender studies.

   - A wide variety of elective courses from a range of departments and programs are available. Additional fundamentals, production, and core courses may also count as elective courses.

Honors

Students receive program honors at graduation if they have a final cumulative GPA of at least 3.75 in cinema studies course work.

Please contact Shauna Riedel-Bash, assistant director of student services, with any questions: cineadvising@uoregon.edu.

Certificate in Film Studies

The certificate in film studies requires 36 credits in courses chosen from four groups: introduction to film studies; aesthetics, theory, and methods of film studies; film and society; and electives.

Introduction to Film Studies

ENG265–266 History of the Motion Picture
ENG260 and Media Aesthetics

Aesthetics, Theory, and Methods of Film Studies

At least one course from English, music, journalism and communication, or other schools or departments on media production and industries, film history, music, genres, and other topics emphasizing the aesthetic aspects of film.

Film and Society

At least two courses from foreign-language departments, English, the social sciences, journalism and communication, or other departments and schools on national cinemas—China, France, Germany, Russia, or other nations—and other topics emphasizing the social aspects of film.

Electives

At least two electives in film studies area
