The African Studies Program encourages teaching and scholarship on sub-Saharan Africa, North Africa, and the wider African diaspora. The program is a focal point for students and faculty members with expertise in African studies, encouraging course offerings related to Africa, promoting study abroad programs and internships, and organizing campus and local community events pertaining to Africa. In addition, the program supports faculty and student research on Africa and facilitates dissemination of research through the lecture series.

Participating Faculty

- Michael Allan, comparative literature
- Oluwakemi “Kemi” Balogun, women’s, gender, and sexuality studies
- B. Mokaya Bosire, linguistics
- Lindsay F. Braun, history
- Yvonne A. Braun, global studies, women’s, gender, and sexuality studies
- Alfredo Burlando, economics
- André Djifack, romance languages
- Stephen Dueppen, anthropology
- Hanan Elsherif, religious studies
- Maria Fernanda Escallón, anthropology
- Stephen R. Frost, anthropology
- Daphne Gallagher, honors college
- Dennis C. Galvan, global studies
- Ibrahim J. Gassama, law
- Melissa Graboyes, history
- Rita Honka, dance
- Habib Iddrisu, music and dance
- Leigh Johnson, geography
- Allison McGuffie, cinema studies
- Lanie Millar, romance languages
- Senyo Ofori-Parku, journalism and communication
- Doris L. Payne, linguistics
- Kory Russel, landscape architecture
- Leslie Steeves, journalism and communication
- Nelson Ting, anthropology
- Peter A. Walker, geography

Emeriti

- Doug Blandy, arts and administration
- Doris L. Payne, linguistics
- Janis C. Weeks, biology

Undergraduate Program

- Minor

  - African Studies (http://catalog.uoregon.edu/arts-sciences/school-global-studies-languages/african-studies/min-african-studies/)

Graduate Program

- Specialization

  - African Studies (http://catalog.uoregon.edu/arts-sciences/school-global-studies-languages/african-studies/gradspec/)