The Department of Political Science offers a broad range of courses. For undergraduates, three 100-level courses cover foundational knowledge and skills, and six 200-level courses serve as “gateways” to career paths that organize the upper-division curriculum: public policy and political action; politics, law, and justice; politics of business; global engagement; sustainability, development, and social action; and ethics, identity, and society. For graduate study, the department offers training in six traditional subfields of political science, each with their own designated faculty members: comparative politics, formal theory and methodology, international relations, public policy, political theory, and United States politics. Faculty members employ varied theoretical and methodological approaches but share the pursuit of answers to questions with real-world implications.

Careers

An undergraduate degree in political science provides a strong foundation for any number of career choices. The program has been designed to develop in students a concrete set skills—critical thinking, analytical abilities, writing proficiency, and precise communication.

Majors are encouraged to select course work that aligns with their career goals, and may choose to complete as many as two career paths. Students begin a career path by completing a 200-level gateway introductory course, then develop and refine skills in upper-division courses. Majors may be awarded at most two career path certificates of completion upon graduation, adding documented expertise to their degree.

The department offers credit for internships related to political science and a workshop to explore and prepare students for the job market. For more information, visit polisci.uoregon.edu/internship-careers.

Political science graduates may also continue on to graduate education, especially in the fields of law, international studies, business administration, or advanced studies in political science.

Faculty

Yvette Alex-Assensoh, professor (immigration, racial politics); vice president for equity and inclusion. BA, 1988, Columbia; MA, 1991, PhD, 1993, Ohio State; JD, 2006, Indiana, Bloomington. (2012)

Neil O’Brien, assistant professor (political parties, Congress, public opinion, polarization). BA, 2011, Case Western Reserve University; PhD, 2020, University of California, Berkeley. (2019)

Dennis C. Galvan, professor (Africa, development, comparative politics); vice provost for international affairs. See International Studies.

Daniel Tichenor, professor (American presidency, interest groups and social movements, US political institutions); Philip H. Knight Chair. BA, 1988, Earlham College; PhD, 1996, Brandeis. (2008)

Emeriti

Undergraduate Studies

The Department of Political Science offers a program leading to a bachelor of science (BS) or a bachelor of arts (BA) degree. This program is designed to

1. provide students with substantive expertise in political institutions, key policy issues, salient ideologies, law and regulation, and political identities in local, national, and global contexts
2. prepare students for graduate work or professional careers in law, business, government, teaching, journalism, social activism, or the academic community

Bachelor’s Degree

Courses at the 100 and 200 levels are introductory, setting foundations for the major. Courses at the 300 and 400 level build students’ expertise in selected career paths, with 300-level courses typically in lecture format and 400-level courses typically in seminar format. A minimum of 32 credits must be upper division.

At the discretion of the instructor, certain 300- and 400-level courses may have prerequisites. Students are advised to complete foundational lower-division requirements prior to taking upper-division courses, especially at the 400 level.

Undergraduate majors who complete a 200-level introductory course and four upper-division courses in a career path earn a certificate of completion, adding documented expertise to their degree. Additional information may be found online (https://polisci.uoregon.edu/career-path/).

Freshmen and Transfer Students

There are no departmental requirements for entering freshmen. Students planning to transfer to the university from two-year colleges should take the basic introductory political science courses offered at those institutions. At least 20 credits in upper-division graded political science courses must be completed in residence at the University of Oregon to qualify for a BA or BS degree in political science. Transfer students should ensure that all transcripts are submitted to the Office of the Registrar prior to their first term of enrollment. During the first term, the department office will review transferred credits approved by the registrar to confirm courses that fulfill degree requirements. In all cases, students are required to fulfill the equivalent of 48 credits for the major.

Second Bachelor’s Degree or Second Major

Students who want to earn a second bachelor’s degree or a second or double major in political science must complete 48 credits in political science, as outlined under Bachelor of Arts Degree Requirements (p. ) or Bachelor of Science Degree Requirements (p. ). Students who are considering a second bachelor’s degree and have prior political science credits should consult with the undergraduate advisor, John Davidson. Some of these prior credits may not be applicable to the second bachelor’s degree.

Honors in Political Science

Political science majors who have reached junior standing and meet GPA minimums are eligible to enter the honors program. The honors program spans the spring term of a student’s junior year to the spring term of senior year. GPA minimums must be maintained to participate—an overall grade point average for UO and transfer credits of at least 3.50, plus a 3.70 GPA or above in the political science major. Students must successfully complete Honors Thesis Prospectus (PS 411) during fall term of the academic year in which the thesis is completed, then complete 4 credits in Thesis (PS 403) in the following winter term. Honors students select a thesis advisor and reader; the advisor supervises and grades the thesis course. The thesis advisor and reader determines if the thesis is approved for honors distinction after eligibility is determined prior to graduation.

1 Only 6 credits may be in Research: [Topic] (PS 401), Reading and Conference: [Topic] (PS 405), and Workshop: [Topic] (PS 408).

All credits must be taken for letter grades and passed with grades of C– or better. As many as 8 credits may be transferred from another institution.

PS 400M, Thesis (PS 403), Internship: [Topic] (PS 404), Practicum: [Topic] (PS 409), Honors Thesis Prospectus (PS 411), and Overseas Study: Internships (OINT 488) do not count toward the minor. The minor in political science does not have a subfield requirement.
Kindergarten through Secondary Teaching Careers

Students who complete a degree with a major in political science are eligible to apply to the College of Education’s fifth-year licensure program in middle-secondary teaching or the fifth-year licensure program in elementary teaching. More information is available in the College of Education section of this catalog.

Graduate Studies

The Department of Political Science offers a graduate program of studies leading to the master of arts (MA), master of science (MS), and doctor of philosophy (PhD) degrees. The program is designed to prepare students for teaching, research, and government or other public service, and to enable them to understand and participate in public affairs.

Members of the faculty offer advanced courses and seminars across the major fields of political science. Graduate student participation in graduate studies...

- Master of Arts (http://catalog.uoregon.edu/arts_sciences/politicalscience/ma/)
- Master of Science (http://catalog.uoregon.edu/arts_sciences/politicalscience/ms/)
- Doctor of Philosophy (http://catalog.uoregon.edu/arts_sciences/politicalscience/phd/) joint faculty-student research and interdepartmental research projects is common on a wide range of topics.

Admission

Admission preference is given to doctoral applicants. Applicants are not required to hold a master’s degree to apply to the doctoral program. Applicants whose main goal is to get a PhD in political science should apply directly to the doctoral program.

Applications for the master’s and doctoral programs are submitted online and consist of the following documents:

1. Official transcripts; successful applicants usually have a grade point average (GPA) of 3.00 or higher for all undergraduate and graduate academic work
2. Official scores on the Graduate Record Examinations (GRE) taken within the last five years; successful applicants usually have a combined verbal and quantitative score of 300 or better
3. International students from non-English-speaking countries must provide proof of English language proficiency by submitting results from one of the following:
   a. Official English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) test results taken within the last two years. A minimum score of 575 (paper-based) or 88 (internet-based) is required
   b. Official International English Language Testing System (IELTS) test results taken within the last two years with a minimum score of 7.0
   c. A transcript showing the applicant has received a bachelor's degree or higher from an accredited US institution or from an institution in the following countries: Australia, Canada (excluding Quebec), Ireland, New Zealand, or the United Kingdom
4. A statement of purpose prepared by the student
5. Recommendations from at least three teachers from whom courses have been taken, or from practitioners in your expected field of study
6. Other evidence that may be helpful in reaching a decision. Although an undergraduate major in political science is not a prerequisite for admission, the committee takes into consideration previous academic work in political science

Information about the graduate program, graduate employee appointments, and application process may be obtained by visiting the department’s website. The deadline for fall term admission and graduate employee appointment applications is January 10.

Courses

PS 102. Thinking Like a Social Scientist. 4 Credits.
Illustrates how the ways social scientists think—using quantitative, qualitative, and interpretive methods—help to sharpen thinking for many contexts and careers.

PS 106. Power, Politics, and Inequality. 4 Credits.
Examines power and politics through the lens of inequality, focusing on the constant struggle between the haves and the have-nots.

PS 111. Introduction to Political Science. 4 Credits.
Offers students the tools to think for themselves about politics: multiple ideological and analytical viewpoints on varying political arrangements around the world.

PS 199. Special Studies: [Topic]. 1-5 Credits.
Topics vary from year to year. Repeatable once when topic changes.

PS 201. United States Politics. 4 Credits.
Theoretical introduction to American institutions, political doctrines, and ideology as these affect the course of politics and public policy in the United States.

PS 205. Introduction to International Relations. 4 Credits.
Introduction to theoretical and methodological tools for the analysis of world politics.

PS 206. Ethics, Identity, and Power. 4 Credits.
This course is a gateway for those considering the "Ethics, Identity, and Society" track in the Political Science major. The course examines political power and ethical ideas about its use, with a focus on race, gender, religion, class, and other forms of social differentiation.

PS 210. Politics of Business. 4 Credits.
Introduces the political science subfield of political economy, which studies the relationship between concepts like the market and the state, capitalism and democracy, politics and the economy. The American political economy is examined from both a historical and an international perspective.

PS 275. Legal Process. 4 Credits.
Overview of the United States legal system. Covers a range of sociolegal writing and provides a context for the legal system under which the U.S. operates.

PS 297. Introduction to Environmental Politics. 4 Credits.
United States environmental policy and alternative environmental political futures.

PS 302. States' Rights (and Wrongs). 4 Credits.
Explores the division between U.S. federal, state and municipal power through the lens of our nation’s most contentious and most critical political and policy debates. Examines how elected officials, judges and activists influence fights over federalism.

PS 304. Democracy, Dictators, and Development. 4 Credits.
Examines key questions in political science like why some countries are rich while others are poor, why some countries are democratic and others are authoritarian, how these different political systems work, and which are best equipped to address ethno-nationalist conflict and economic development.

PS 308. United States Political Thought. 4 Credits.

PS 309. Political Ideologies. 4 Credits.
Ideology is a more-or-less coherent lens through which a person views the world in order to process information and direct action. The course examines how the world looks different for those holding liberal, conservative, communist, fascist, or anarchist world views.

PS 310. Roots of Democracy. 4 Credits.
Examines modern conceptions of democracy, citizenship, legality, virtue, equality, and political order, which grew out of ideas initially developed in ancient Greek city-states. Special attention given to ideas of active citizenship.

PS 311. Sovereignty and Revolution. 4 Credits.
Examines contemporary conceptions of politics springing from European debates about the power of kings, law, and the people. Considers key textual moments in the process by which modern conceptions of democracy emerged.
PS 312. Shadows of Modernity. 4 Credits.
Explores the distinct critiques of modernity offered by John Stuart Mill, Karl Marx, Friedrich Nietzsche, Michel Foucault, and Sigmund Freud. Concepts explored include liberalism, capitalism, power, morality, and the unconscious.

PS 316. Black Lives Matter and American Democracy. 4 Credits.
Explores the ideological origins and contemporary politics of the Black Lives Matter movement. Modules include the demands of on democracy, race and the criminal justice system, and the politics of protest.

PS 319. The Politics of the Body. 4 Credits.
This course examines the politics of the body in the US. It will focus on scientific and biological definitions of identity and how that affects policies.

PS 320. International Organization. 4 Credits.
Studies efforts by states to cooperate in an effort to avoid or resolve conflict in the realms of security, trade, human rights, and the environment.

PS 324. European Politics. 4 Credits.
Overview of the formation and current dynamics of national politics in Western Europe.

PS 326. United States Foreign Policy I. 4 Credits.
Basic concepts underlying the formulation and implementation of United States foreign policy; relationships between American society and foreign policy; the relationship of the U.S. to its international environment.

PS 330. Governments and Politics in Latin America. 4 Credits.
Social, political, and economic developments in Latin America; causes and consequences of revolutions, democratization, economic politics; examples from Mexico, Brazil, Chile, Argentina, Guatemala, Venezuela. Offered alternate years.

PS 337. The Politics of Development. 4 Credits.
Presents alternative perspectives on key north-south issues: trade, aid, foreign investment, debt, and the environment. Includes such institutions as the International Monetary Fund, World Bank, and World Trade Organization.

PS 340. International Political Economy. 4 Credits.
Links between economics and politics in the international system. Basic concepts include power, dependence, inequality, imperialism, and development. EC 201, 202, or PS 205 recommended preparation.

PS 342. Politics of China. 4 Credits.
Survey of the politics of the People’s Republic of China. Emphasis on political sociology and group conflict; elites, ideology, social change, and organization.

PS 345. Southeast Asian Politics. 4 Credits.
Surveys major themes in contemporary Southeast Asian politics, including nation-state building, economic development, authoritarianism and democracy, and religious and ethnic politics.

PS 346. Terrorism and Weapons Proliferation. 4 Credits.
Examines causes and control of terrorism, especially preventing terrorist use of weapons of mass destruction; theories and policies of nonproliferation and arms control.

PS 347. Political Power, Influence, and Control. 4 Credits.
Survey of the use of the concept of power in the social sciences, stressing diverse theoretical perspectives and empirical studies of political institutions.

PS 348. Women and Politics. 4 Credits.
Examines the political role of women and questions of equality in the U.S. from historical and contemporary perspectives. Topics may include voting, welfare, reproductive rights, and representation.

PS 349. Mass Media and American Politics. 4 Credits.
The role of the mass media in contemporary American politics; the effect of the media on such institutions as political parties, elections, and the presidency.

PS 350. Politics and Film. 4 Credits.
Examines the political relevance of films and their role as a medium for illustrating, defending, and challenging political ideas.

PS 351. Democratic Dilemmas. 4 Credits.
Core course for the Wayne Morse Scholars Program, exploring significant political and policy challenges confronting our representative democracy.

PS 352. Political Parties and Elections. 4 Credits.
