

Journalism: Public Relations (BA/BS)

Public relations is all about connecting people—to information, to organizations, and to other people. In our nationally certified program, you'll learn how to convey the right message to the right audience at the right time while forging relationships built on ethics, trust, and transparency.

Our students plan, create, and strategize in real-world settings. You'll build your portfolio as you develop innovative campaigns for real clients in our student-run public relations firm (<https://blogs.uoregon.edu/allenhallpr/>), or expand your network in the Public Relations Student Society of America (<https://prssa.prsa.org/>). Travel the country (<https://around.uoregon.edu/sojc/public-information-officer/>) to rub elbows with public relations professionals, tour Silicon Valley agencies, and peek behind the scenes of high-profile communication departments at companies like Twitter and Google.

The 104 credits must include a minor or area of concentration outside of the School of Journalism and Communication
- Majors and premajors must take all school courses for letter grades unless a course is only offered pass/no pass (P/N). All graded journalism courses taken to satisfy the major must be passed with a grade of better than a C-.
- A cumulative GPA of 2.70 or better in courses taken in the School of Journalism and Communication at the time of graduation

Internship

A major may earn no more than 9 credits in Internship: [Topic] (J 404).

Honors Program

The honors program provides high-achieving students the opportunity to develop analytic, creative, critical thinking and research skills in small-group, discussion-oriented courses. The program develops a small multidisciplinary community of communications scholars from all the majors within the School of Journalism and Communication.

Students take three honors courses focusing on media theory, research, or issues, which partially fulfill the context course requirement. In addition, students complete an original piece of scholarship or creative work in the senior year.

The program targets journalism majors entering their junior year who have a minimum 3.50 cumulative UO GPA. Applications are accepted each spring for the following year's cohort. Clark Honors College students are eligible to apply. More information is available on the school's website.

Second Bachelor's Degree

Students who already have a bachelor's degree and want to earn a second bachelor's degree in the School of Journalism and Communication may apply for premajor status through the university's Office of Admissions. Upon fulfilling the requirements for application for admission, they may apply for major status. Students must complete all of the school's requirements for graduation including the school's nonjournalism requirement and university requirements for the BA or BS. Credits, including transfer credits, earned for the first bachelor's degree may count toward meeting the requirements as long as they conform to the transfer-credit policy outlined previously.

Four-Year Degree Plan

*Requirements for the School of Journalism and Communication are complex, and students are strongly encouraged to consult with an advisor in the school's Student Services Center to ensure accurate interpretation of requirements and timely degree completion.
